The Fox and the Crow

One sunny day a crow found a bit of cheese and went up into a tree.

A hungry fox looked at him. He wanted to eat the cheese.

The fox said, "What a pretty bird you are and how sweetly you sing." The crow was very happy.

"Please sing for me,"
said the fox.

When the crow opened his beak to sing the cheese fell down.

The fox smiled. He jumped up and grabbed
the cheese. Silly crow.
Clever fox!
