

REPRESENTATION IN THE PRIMARY CURRICULUM

- Learn how to create inclusive classrooms that authentically reflect the diverse experiences and identities of students.
- Explore sensitive issues of 'race', racism and representation in a safe and supportive environment, with a focus on the arts and culture.
- Learn how to approach the challenges of effectively integrating diversity and representation into the primary curriculum.
- Gain the tools and support needed to navigate complex issues.
- Gain a rich variety of ideas, and inspiration for how to implement them.

"Genuinely the best course I have been on for many years. And one that inspired me and will change and update my practice."

Karen - Arts Lead at
St. Francis Catholic Primary in Maidstone

The course consists of four modules, which will be delivered across one full day in-person, and a twilight via zoom.

Monday 17th March 9.30 – 3.30 at The Oakwood Centre

Modules 1 – 3:

- Key curriculum principles for embedding representation, including pupil audit tools and art-based examples and resources.
- Exploration of 'race' and racism in-depth, empowering participants to engage in discussions on these topics confidently.
- A framework for racial literacy in the primary curriculum, emphasising key themes and age-appropriate progression.

Tuesday 25th March 4 – 6pm via Zoom

Module 4:

- Diverse artists and arts projects for primary arts education, to help students develop critical evaluative skills.

(The course incorporates elements of the 'Racial literacy for school staff' course, and the 'Racial Literacy Curriculum Framework' course, which some colleagues will have previously attended, with a particular focus on art.)

Free of charge

For: Art subject leaders, and any primary school teacher

Suitable for teachers who have not attended any racial equity courses previously.

Only 10 places available!

Up to two places per school can be booked in the first instance

Booking:

<https://wsh.wokingham.gov.uk/form/schools-online-booking>

(Course code = EW. Please leave blank any boxes that don't apply)

"Thought-provoking and transformative - this would be great for all primary teachers - not just art leads".

Hillside Primary

Delivered by Abha Aggarwal and Ruth England of Race Matters

