

Empower Your Teaching with Climate Justice Education!

March 20, 1.30-4pm, RISC

Are you passionate about fostering a more equitable and sustainable future? As part of UN World Water Day, join our workshop designed for educators who want to integrate climate justice into their teaching practices.

What we'll cover:

- Understanding the principles of climate justice and its impact on communities.
- Strategies for incorporating climate justice into your curriculum.
- Engaging students in meaningful discussions and actions on climate issues.
- Building a supportive network of like-minded educators.

Why Attend?

- Gain actionable insights and resources to inspire your students.
- Develop a curriculum that addresses environmental and social justice.
- Equip yourself with the tools to be an advocate for change.

Who Should Attend?

- Teachers across KS2,3 & 4 from all subject areas
- Education professionals interested in climate and social justice.
- Anyone looking to make a positive impact through education.

To book your place, email kirsty@risc.org.uk

We are able to offer this course free to educators thanks to the generous support of

The Earley Charity